

Plan Mokena War Memorial

Frankfort Without J. P. Service

Village President Geo. Sangmeister recently learned that the village of Frankfort is without either a Justice of the Peace or a Police Magistrate, altho Mr. J. C. Knight on the village ticket, and Wesley Hollstein on the Township ticket were elected to these offices at the April election. The reason, as reported by Mr. Sangmeister, is that both men failed to post the required bond within the twenty day period following the election as required by law, and are therefore unable to serve their offices. There are two alternatives to the problem either the offices will remain vacant for two years or a special election will have to be held. The matter will be discussed at the village board meeting Monday evening, July 2.

How New Lenox Can Have Dustless Streets

Every year about this time when the dust begins to roll off the streets and the lawns and homes are coated over, a vigorous discussion starts about having the streets topped. And every year everyone goes on enduring this condition.

Naturally nothing will be done because there is no center of responsibility. Yet for $3 to $5 a month you can engage the best minds of the community and put them to work to provide improved streets, etc. Yes, $3 to $5 is all village officials are paid in a community this size.

The cost to have the streets topped will vary depending on the condition of the streets at the time. Most of the streets will require some preparation. The price of $22 for a 50 foot front given at the May 3rd meeting was for three coats of oil and fine stone and did not include any expense for preparing the street. After the streets have been topped it will be up to the village to maintain them.

And it will not be necessary to buy road machinery. Frankfort, Mokena, and Manhattan to mention a few, do not have road machinery. They have made satisfactory arrangements to have their streets kept up. New Lenox can do the same and the cost to maintain them will not be any higher than now with gravel. Actually, some years less will be spent to maintain the streets and the money not used set aside, because every three or four years the streets will need a top dressing of oil and fine stone which will be paid for from this saving.

The source of the money for maintaining the streets will come from the road and bridge tax and gasoline tax. Through the gasoline tax the village will receive about $1,000 annually, but this amount will have to be spent for certain streets designated by the State. There will be very little money left if any, for new streets and therefore such streets will have to be put in by the owner.

We wish to repeat, so that there will be no misunderstanding, that the only expense other than what you are now paying as part of your tax is the cost of the original top. The money the village will get from the state and county taxes will be sufficient to maintain the streets after that. However, if you live on a street that is already paved voice your good neighborliness by voting for incorporation next spring so the rest of us can enjoy dust free streets.

North Cedar and U. S. 30 will continue to be maintained by the State and South Cedar will continue to be maintained by the county after the village is incorporated.

MOKENA WOMEN FIGURE IN DIVORCE COMPLAINTS

Mrs. Frances Hall of Mokena is asking a divorce in circuit court of Will County from Willis A. Hall whom she married at Mokena Oct. 18, 1930. Drunkenness and cruelty is charged. She is asking that a temporary injunction be issued to restrain her husband from molesting her. Mrs. Hall is also asking the custody of their three children.

A divorce complaint filed by Elaine Scott of Mokena against Virgil Scott on the grounds of cruelty was dismissed the past week.

It was Mr. Scott's father, Luther who was fatally beaten by Mrs. Scott's two brothers William and Louis Stanger during a family argument in June 1944. The melee followed the arrest of the younger Scott who was picked up by the sheriff's deputies on the complaint of his wife.

APPOINTS NEW SUPERVISOR

Geo. Bobzin of Green Garden has been appointed by the Town Board as supervisor, to succeed the late Mr. Wm. C. Bettenhausen.

Lt. Robert Funk Back From Nazi Prison Camp

There was great rejoicing in the J. C. Funk household in Tinley Park Sunday night, the reason for this jubilation being the return home of Lt. Robert Funk who had been a prisoner of war of the Nazis for eight months, after his plane had been shot down in September 1944, inside Germany.

Lt. Funk was far more fortunate than most prisoners and suffered no ill treatment. He is looking fine and feels fine also.

In an interview at his home, Lt. Funk told of his varied and highly interesting experiences. He left this country for England, May 30, 1944 on the ocean liner Queen Elizabeth. There were 15,000 troops on board. The trip at first appeared uneventful until Nazi submarines were detected and finally one U-boat was too close for comfort and the giant liner sailed 500 miles off its course to elude the underwater sea wolf.

Lt. Funk, who was with the air force made 11 bombing missions over Germany from bases in England, flying over the English channel and the North Sea.

In September of 1944, while returning from a day-light raid over Germany, his plane was shot down by a heavy charge of flak while the plane was at an altitude of 26,000 feet. Seeing that the craft was too badly crippled to continue flying, the crew of nine men bailed out. Lt. Funk was the last to bail out when the plane had lost altitude rapidly and was about 5,000 feet up. Immediately after the crew had bailed out, the bomber exploded and burst into flames.

Lt. Funk drifted to earth and landed in a plowed field near a small village. In landing on the hard ground, he sprained an ankle. Nazi soldiers were out in full force and he was immediately taken prisoner of war. He was taken to Nazi headquarters at Frankfort-on-the-Main and later to the German prison camp at Barth on the Baltic sea about 35 miles from Berlin. Here he said, the prisoners were accorded quite good treatment. Food was very short. They received five thin slices of black bread a day. This bread was soggy and heavy, but after being toasted was quite palatable. About once in three weeks, the Nazis provided a small piece of meat, usually horse meat. Lt. Funk says he cannot praise the Red Cross enough for the wonderful job they did in sending food supply packages to these prison camps. He said the food shortage in his camp was greatly relieved when the Red Cross food packages arrived, contained canned corn beef, corn beef hash, spam, etc. Red Cross packages also arrived from England containing powdered milk and powdered eggs. Lt. Funk acted as cook and the boys got along quite well. The YMCA provided recreation equipment, also phonographs and records. This helped to while away the long hours. Books also were supplied from allied sources. When winter set in, the heating problem became acute, as only enough coal was doled out for use in the kitchen stoves, so in below-zero weather, the only way to keep even slightly warm, was to stay in bed. The only warm drinks were an ersatz coffee made from alfalfa and a substitute tea.

There was a period of several weeks when the camp food supply was at an extremely low ebb when the Red Cross packages failed to come thru. The Nazis blamed this to the destruction of their transportation system.

The Nazis appeared to greatly fear the Russians and when the big spring offensive opened they became real jittery and suddenly there was a good supply of food at the camp, which evidently was used as a means of proving that the prisoners were being well treated should the camp be captured.

Thousands Attend Tinley Park Homecoming

Literally thousands of people attended the 4th annual Tinley Park Homecoming held in the Saenger Hall and grove last Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon and evening. The great success of the event shows what real community cooperation can do.

Fifteen of the local organizations of Tinley Park backed up and sponsored the homecoming and by all working together they scored a big success.

The grove was packed and all the booths, concessions etc. were literally swamped. The refreshment stands did a land office business and the supply of hot dogs and ice cream was exhausted several times. Everyone had a good time and everything ran along as smoothly as could be.

The proceeds derived are being turned over to a fund for the creation of a local war memorial in honor of the Tinley Park boys and girls in the service of their country.

The Tinley Park Memorial Fund Committee has released the following figures on the Memorial Fund:

Following are amounts received from the sale of award books at the Tinley Park Homecoming to be used for the Tinley Park War Memorial Fund:

Mr. Minger had been ill for the past several months of heart trouble.

NEW LENOX METHODIST CHURCH SCENE OF PRETTY JUNE WEDDING

At a very pretty nuptial service performed Sunday afternoon June 24 at 3:30 o'clock, in the New Lenox Methodist church, Miss Lenna Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Alexander of New Lenox, became the bride of Lester Koerner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Koerner of Frankfort.

Officiating at the double ring candle light ceremony was the Rev. Royal Synwolt of the Lockport Methodist church.

Huge bouquets of blue Delphinium, and red roses flanked by floor candelabra and palms, decorated the altar. The candles were lighted by Miss Merna Mae Crawford, niece of the bride, who wore a pale pink floor length gown trimmed with lace.

Miss Dorothy Colter of Chicago was the maid of honor and preceded Miss Alexander to the altar. Her gown was of light pink, silk marquisette, made with a sweetheart neckline, short puff sleeves, tight fitting bodice and full skirt which was trimmed with small ribbon bows. Her gloves were three quarter length of pink and her matching blusher veil was held in place with a crown of pink larkspur. Pink and blue delphinium made up her Colonial bouquet that was tied with blue streamers. She also wore a string of pearls, a gift of the bride.

The Misses Marion Schoop and Mary Jane Gougar served as bridesmaids. They were dressed identical to that of the maid of honor in powder blue shaded gowns. Their bouquets were of pink and blue delphinium, tied with pink streamers. They also wore pearls a gift of the bride.

With her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride slowly advanced to the altar. Her lovely wedding gown was of white silk marquisette, with a sweetheart neckline, tight fitted lace inserted bodice that was lined down the back with tiny marquisette buttons. The long tight fitting sleeves tapered off at the wrist. She wore an extremely long train and the finger tip veil was held in place by an orange blossom tiara. She carried an arm bouquet of Calla lilies that were tied with white satin streamers. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace the gift of the groom.

Roy Koerner served his brother as best man, and Robt. Seivert and Harvey Crawford were the ushers.

Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Mrs. Howard Ayres as the bridal party entered. She also played several selections during the ceremony.

Little Ronald Wayne Crawford, nephew of the bride was the ring bearer and little Bonnie Weichbrodt, niece of the groom was the flower girl.

Following the wedding, a reception was held for friends and relatives at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table was centered with a beautiful rose spray and pink and blue streamers decorated the lace covered table. Pink Candelabra tied with blue ribbons in crystal holders decorated either end. Mrs. Arthur Papke poured from the Silver Service.

Mrs. Alexander wore a gray print crepe dress with white accessories, and a corsage of sweet peas, for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Koerner was attired in a rose print crepe with white accessories and a corsage of sweet peas.

The couple departed on a short wedding trip and upon their return will reside for the present with the bride's parents. The new Mrs. Koerner who graduated from the Joliet Township high school is employed at the Western Association of Railroad Executives at the Union Station in Chicago. Mr. Koerner, who also graduated from the Joliet High School and Metropolitan Business college, is employed with the Knipple and Son Trucking Co., in Frankfort.

Notice

As the 4th of July falls on Wednesday of next week, we must go to press earlier so all news copy and advertising material must be in by Tuesday morning in order to appear in next week's issue.

Start Soliciting Funds For New Mokena Truck

Representatives of the Volunteer Fire Dept. within the next few days will call on residents of the Village of Mokena and vicinity to secure pledges relative to the purchase of equipment and insurance of its members.

While no collections will be made at this time it will indicate by the amount subscribed if it will be possible to carry out the program.

Approximately five thousand dollars will be needed which is not an excessive amount to achieve the efficiency which will result. The pledge cards which the representatives will use will be numbered and be in duplicate, one part to be left with the subscriber, in this manner all the money so raised can be used for this purpose only.

It is also planned to publish an up to date list of subscribers weekly in the Mokena News Bulletin.

MARLEY TO HOLD 63rd ANNUAL 4th OF JULY PICNIC

Encounters Tough Nazi

Mrs. Lucille Long in a letter from her husband, Pfc. August Long, he stated that he is in a hospital in Soissons, France. Pfc. Long, with his 20th Div. of Gen. Patch's 7th Army, were fighting house to house in an undisclosed German city, and he was fighting hand to hand with a Nazi soldier. The later succeeded in knocking Long down several times, finally hitting him in the face with the butt end of his gun, breaking Long's jaw.

Pfc. Long's buddy came to his aid and when Long regained consciousness, told him "not to worry about that Nazi anymore, he won't hit anyone again, I've finished him."

Pfc. Long said this happened on the 3rd of May, and at the time of writing, had a great deal of pain yet.

His wife and daughter, is making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Werner, in Mokena.

SPECIAL NOTICE

Dumping of rubbish along the highways of Frankfort township is strictly prohibited. Those ignoring this notice will be subject to fine and will have to remove whatever rubbish they have dumped. —Henry Yunker, Highway Commissioner, Frankfort Township.

Launch Drive For Community Participation

The Mokena Civic Association called a meeting of their members and wives which was held in Hatch hall, Tuesday evening. The purpose was to work on the plans for the Mokena Home Coming which will be held August 24, 25 and 26, the net proceeds from which is to go into a fund to build a Community Building in Mokena, as a Memorial to Mokena's Veterans, sponsored by the Civic Association.

Decision was made at this meeting Tuesday night, to hold another meeting next Friday evening July 6, at 8:30 o'clock in Hatch hall and to invite all the citizens of Mokena, to attend this meeting for the purpose to help work and plan for this Home Coming. As this Memorial should interest and be a benefit to all in the Mokena area, the Association thought the public should be invited to help on these plans.

It is hoped that all in this area will respond cheerfully so as to have the combined interests and efforts of all back of this worthy project.

County Auditor Keeps Taxpayers Informed

Since Herman Grassle has held the office of auditor of Will County the county's financial system has been placed on an efficient business like basis and for the first time in the history of the county, a complete statement of all money received and expended by the various departments of county government is issued quarterly and sent to heads of business firms, newspapers, etc. in the county. These comprehensive reports show exactly where the tax payers money goes. This new system of paying attention to the taxpayers interests prevents the haphazard handling of public funds as was the case in the past. An inquiry uncovered the fact that some bills were paid as many as four times while others became outlawed before receiving attention.

Fine work Herman and rest assured the taxpayers through Will County appreciate your fine work. This proves that honest office holders are real servants of the people.

Mrs. Ella Loebe of Orland Park Dies After Long Illness

Mrs. Ella M. Loebe, Orland Park, aged 69 years, passed away in Silver Cross hospital, Joliet June 27 after a lingering illness. She was the widow of Albert C. Loebe, who died in 1926.

Mrs. Loebe was born on the Mahaffay farm in Palos Township and was very active in community affairs during her life time. For many years she was President of the Women's Guild of the Orland Methodist church. She and her husband both took active part in this church's activities.

In her early career she was a school teacher, teaching in many of the Cook County schools, including Orland Park. In later years she was a school director of Dist. 135 Orland, and helped to build the present school building and to get a high school organized in Orland Park.

In later years she became interested in Women's Club work serving as the first Pres. of Orland Park's Women's club. As a business venture she established the Purple Candle Tea Room in the village of Orland Park, which served the community for 12 years until war conditions forced it to close.

During the first World war she was the Pres. of the Orland Park Red Cross chapter and also had been active in this work during the early part of this war until failing health caused her to give it up in the early part of 1944.

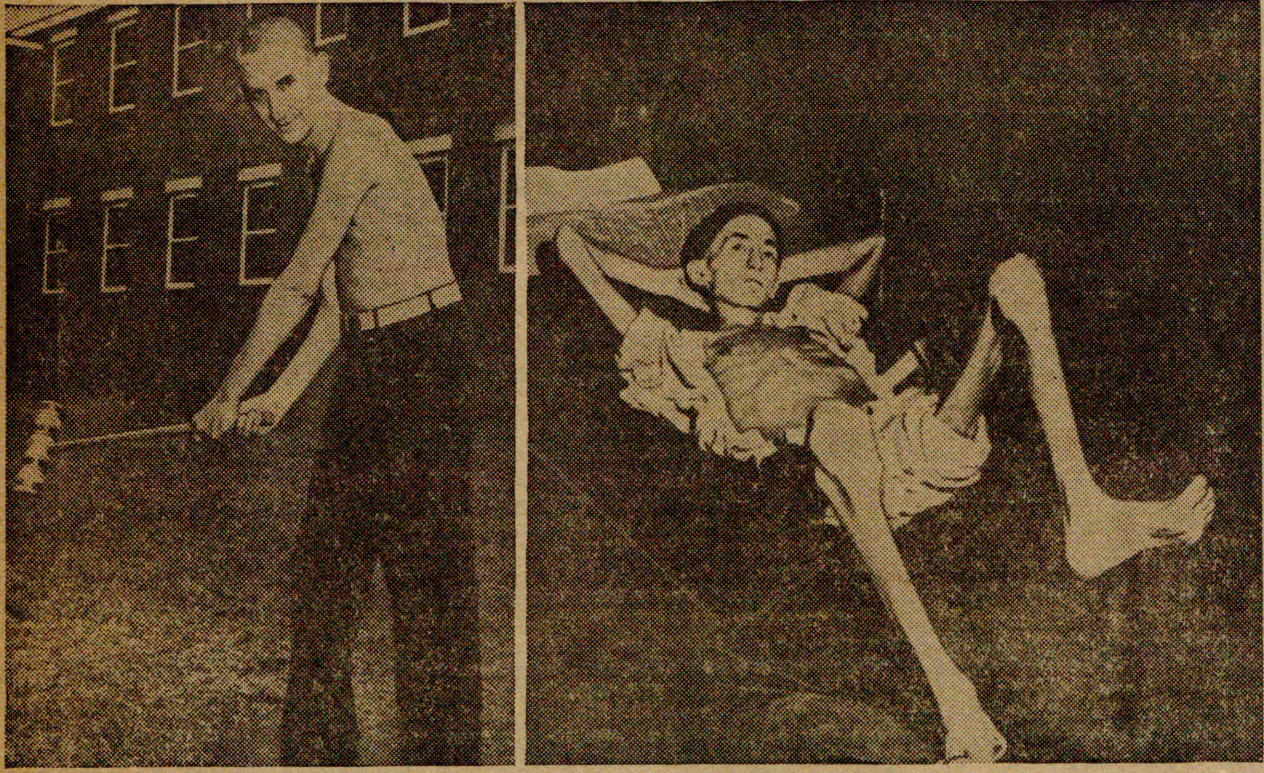

For the past few years she lived with her son Roy who is an engineer at Oak Ridge, Knoxville, Tenn. Besides her son Roy she is survived by two brothers Mr. Wm. Mahaffay of Palos Park and Mr. Walter Mahaffay of Worth, Ill. two sisters Mrs. Jennie Clark of Algonquin, Mich. and Mrs. Maud Trab of Palos Park.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Orland Methodist church with burial in Cedar Park, Chicago. The body will be in state in the church from 10:00 this morning until service time.

Thunderhead

MARY O'HARA
W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Thunderhead, or the Goblin as he is commonly known, is the only white horse ever born on the Goose Bar ranch in Wyoming. He grows from an ugly, misshapen colt to a powerful yearling, showing more and more characteristics of his great grandsire, a wild stallion called the Albino. One day the Goblin wanders southward into the mountains and finds a high valley where wild horses live. He encounters the Albino, and barely escapes with his life. Meanwhile his mother Flicka bears another colt named Touch and Go. Goblin returns, badly injured. When his wounds are healed, Ken McLaughlin, his 12-year-old owner, begins the difficult task of training him.

CHAPTER XII

Late one afternoon, after an hour of such struggling, a fury came into Ken and he began to lash Thunderhead with his crop. He lashed him until he was exhausted. With his other hand he held the reins and forced the horse this way and that. With his heels he spurred him. Tears of weakness and rage stood in his eyes.

Suddenly Thunderhead had the impulse to obey. Generations of breeding had put knowledge into him of the horse's part of horsemanship, a realization that obedience to a skilled rider makes one out of the two, makes teamwork out of the ride, something almost like a dance, a performance that a horse cannot achieve alone. He leaned his mouth against the feather lightness of Ken's hands, and, obedient to them, exercised skills that he had never exercised before. There was grace to his movement now, grace and control and technique. There was joy in it. He stopped fighting the bit. As if he had learned all that Ken had been trying to teach him, or had known it all along, he swung right or left at the least touch of the rein on his neck or the lean of his rider's body. His steps were pliant, prancing. He delighted in the quick, easy turns, in responding to the hands that lifted him into a longer and longer stride.

When Thunderhead achieved obedience, he enlarged himself. The skill and the will of another being were added to his own skill and will. He was having a new experience and it ran through his body like quicksilver. He loved Nell, but nobody had fought him and warred with him and lashed him and taught him obedience but Ken.

At last Ken let him out fully and urged him with voice and hands and heels.

Thunderhead began to run. His hoofs reached forward and seized the ground with a slashing cut that barely touched and rebounded.

A feeling of extraordinary ease went through Ken. No effort was needed, there was no more struggling, he and the colt were one at last. The fight was over and now—this!

Mastery! Underneath him was something of such strength and power as he had never dreamed of. It surged into him. It was his own. A clump of rocks was ahead of them. Ken did not swerve—the least tightening of his knees, lift of his hands—and the stallion sailed over, hardly altering his stride. The fence over there by the road! Take it, Thunderhead, and the long soaring leap—the light landing—

Everything seemed different to Ken. He looked around. He saw, felt, apprehended as he never had before, as if he had been let into a secret world that no one else knew anything about. The wind whipped his cheeks and filled his mouth and beat upon his eyeballs and whistled in his ears. The pace! The incredible speed! The strange floating gait! Those long reaching strides seemed almost slow, like the overhand strokes of a swimmer. Then the lightning-quick slash at the ground, and again the rush through the air. No obstacles could stop him. There were none. They floated over them.

The world rolled out from under the stallion's hoofs. They were covering ground Ken had never seen before. He made no effort to guide him. They were on the mountains—they were in the sky—Clouds, trees, earth, streamed past. A group of antelopes! He saw their frightened leaps—their startled faces—they were gone! Ken's consciousness was fused with all that there was in the world. He had gathered it in. He was the pulse-beat. He was the kernel. This is it.

He sat at the supper table that night in a dream, unable to speak or eat.

He wondered if Thunderhead would ever do it again. When he had dismounted and unsaddled the colt and had stood looking into his face—looking into the future, his hands trembling because he knew, now, beyond all doubt, what the horse could do—he saw that Thunderhead still hated him. The dark, white-ringed eye looked at him sideways, viciously.

"How did the colt go today, Ken?" "He went—better, dad."

"Did you get him to go forward under the saddle?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you get him running?"

"Sort of—"

Rob McLaughlin looked searchingly at his son. He asked no more.

It was a warm August evening. Rob was driving to a ranch south-west of his own to inspect a mare. He had been told she was a registered thoroughbred, had been a racer, and was for sale cheap. A way must be found. But that wasn't all. What about their own expenses for the coming year? They would need two thousand dollars to live on, and there was a thousand dollars of unpaid bills—hardware, veterinary, elevator, machine repair shop—and that five thousand dollar note to be paid in October—it had to be paid. Last year the man had extended it for a year and said that was the last time.

She sat nervously upright. "Rob—is Bellamy going to take the lease for the sheep again this fall?"

"I don't know. Haven't asked him yet. But I suppose he will. Why?" The last word was shot at her beligerently.

"Well—I was just wondering. The lease money—that fifteen hundred dollars—it means a good deal to us."

Rob playfully grabbed her by the head with his free hand and shook her. "Now you're worrying about money. Don't bother your little head about that. I'll attend to it."

"Ouch!" said Nell, catching at her head. "You hurt." She rearranged her hair, and returned to her thoughts. Rob, of course, would never see or think what he didn't want to. But suppose he were different? Suppose he were openminded and reasonable—what ought they to do?

What did people do when they had spent half their lives doing something that was, apparently, going to bring them to the poorhouse if continued? They did not fling good years after bad. They changed. They took another road. But Rob? It was as if he were hypnotized—as if he could not turn or change. He wouldn't even discuss it. Suddenly she felt angry. Here they were partners in the greatest possible enterprise—family life—and she must suffer the consequences of failure as well as he, yet he would never allow discussions on unpleasant themes. He would shout at her, browbeat her, create such friction and unpleasantness that she could not bear it—it wasn't fair.

Suddenly Rob burst out: "I can see that I've been awfully dumb."

"What do you mean?"

"I've always thought that you were with me."

"With you?"

"In everything I did. The ranch, my work, the horses, my plans—everything."

"You used to be," he interrupted. "I don't know when you changed. I've just been going along like a fool taking it for granted."

"Taking what for granted?"

"That you had confidence in me."

"You oughtn't to put it that way. Married people ought to talk things over with each other and you never will. It isn't that I haven't confidence in you—"

"But you haven't. That is, you have no confidence in my ever making a go of the horses. I know I will if I hang on. I'll force it to succeed. You used to know it too. You were with me. But you don't know it any longer."

Nell was silent.

"Just exactly what would you like me to do?" he asked grimly.

"I—I don't know—"

"That's just it. You don't know. You don't know anything about it. But while I'm doing all I can to make a go of it—lying awake nights planning how I can keep up or improve my horses and find the best markets, you're just sitting back waiting for the crash so that you can pick up the pieces."

"Well," she suddenly whispered, "we are on the downgrade, have been for years. You've said it yourself. You're the one who told me. You're the one who's worrying yourself sick about it. And we're not making any sort of change in our lives, in our plans, so why expect a change in the results?"

Rob stood facing her, feet apart, his dark head, so significant and arresting, dropped on his chest. The moonlight changed his ruddiness of skin to a greenish pallor.

Suddenly Nell held out her arms—nothing mattered—she went to him. He pushed her away. "Don't, Nell, I can't stand it."

She backed away, feeling humiliated. She might have known he didn't want comfort or coddling, he wanted his head up again—before her. But what could she do about that? While she stood, clasping her hands frantically together and fighting the tears that in a moment could be a flood, Rob walked away from her and disappeared.

In such moments of unendurable hurt, lovers run away from each other.

Nell walked down toward the corals and stood against the fence. Presently she saw the horses approaching. Thunderhead and Touch and Go. He came to the fence, she spoke his name and held out her hand. He came close, she laid her hand on his face.

"Thunderhead—Thunderhead—"

He felt her grief as horses always do, and shoved his nose against her. Touch and Go must do as her big brother did and pushed her nose up for petting too.

When Nell went in, half an hour later, she found Rob sitting in his den, reading the paper, knees comfortably crossed and pipe in his mouth.

"A new purebred stallion!" exclaimed Nell.

"You're always talking about it."

"But you can't do it indiscriminately. They have to be picked individuals. There isn't one of those mares good enough."

"What'll you do for brood mares then, Rob?"

"Buy some more, I suppose, the way I bought all the others. Travel around to the race tracks—pick up mares of good blood that can't race any more."

Nell made no answer. Rob wanted to fight. He didn't want to see a way out or to make any compromise. She changed the subject.

"Rob, I've been thinking about Thunderhead. Ken is so awfully happy about him now—the speed he's developed. Do you think it's absolutely necessary to geld him?"

"He's a two-year-old," said Rob harshly. "All the other two are to be gelded, why shouldn't he be?"

"Ken is simply having a fit about it," said Nell.

"Ken is a pain in the neck."

"Besides," said Nell, "he's not really two yet—just twenty-two months."

Rob explained, with weary patience as if to a child of subnormal intelligence, "We wait until they are two to geld them in order to give their necks time to develop. But Thunderhead's neck is already developed like a three-year-old's. He could have been gelded six months ago."

Rob's tone of voice, served notice on her that he didn't want to hear any more of that. She closed her lips tight but the seething thoughts went on behind them. They themselves were heading into financial disaster just as fast as they could gallop. It was this fall that Howard was to go east to Bostwick's Preparatory School, and the tuition was twelve hundred dollars and half of it had to be paid in advance. Where was that money going to come from? And the money for his outfit and traveling expenses? She hadn't dared ask Rob. There would have to be eight hundred dollars by September the tenth. Perhaps there wouldn't be. At the thought of abandoning their plans for the boys' education her hand began to tap nervously on her knee. No. Anything but that. It would only be two years at Bostwick's and then into West Point and no more expense. A way must be found. But that wasn't all. What about their own expenses for the coming year? They would need two thousand dollars to live on, and there was a thousand dollars of unpaid bills—hardware, veterinary, elevator, machine repair shop—and that five thousand dollar note to be paid in October—it had to be paid. Last year the man had extended it for a year and said that was the last time.

GOD'S JOY IN CREATION

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 1:1-5, 10-12, 18, 26, 27, 31.

GOLDEN TEXT—God saw everything that he had made, and, behold, it was very good.—Genesis 1:31.

The destiny of this world seems to be in the balances in our day with wicked men ruthlessly trying to destroy that which is good and upright. We are deeply concerned in our hearts that the right should triumph and that a just and righteous peace should come.

In such a day it is good to remind ourselves, as we will in our three-month series of studies in Genesis, that man did not make this world, nor is it the product of natural forces. God made it.

God, who is eternal, infinite, and knows all from the beginning, is not moved by the impulses of the moment nor staggered by the catastrophes of a day.

He made the world. He made man. He had a plan for them, and still has a plan which He will in due season work out for His own glory.

I. God Made Heaven and Earth (vv. 1-5, 10-12, 16-18).

The biblical account of creation—"In the beginning God"—stands as a dignified, satisfactory, intelligent explanation of the origin of things, and in bold contrast to the confusing and almost unbelievable theories of men.

The best of scientists admit that they know nothing of the origin of things, and some say that they never will know. The answer to this query, with which every human philosophy opens, is the affirmation with which the divine account in Genesis opens—"In the beginning God."

Space forbids full discussion of the account of creation, but a study of it will reveal its beautiful order, symmetry, and completeness.

Compare that orderly account with the absurdities of the ancient human cosmogonies, and you have a new regard for Scripture.

II. God Made Man in His Own Image (vv. 26, 27).

Although man has often so debased himself by sin and disobedience to God that it seems almost unbelievable, it is nevertheless true that he was made in the likeness and image of God. Because that is true, we never give up hope for him. Because of that image, no matter how deeply defaced by sin, man still may be touched by redeeming grace and restored to fellowship with God.

The likeness and image of God in man refers to a moral and spiritual likeness. Man is a living soul with intelligence, feeling and will. He is a moral being, knowing the difference between right and wrong. He is a self-conscious, personal being.

To man God gave dominion over the earth and all its potential powers. Sometimes one has been hopeful that man was making good progress in the development of the earth's resources for his own good and the glory of God. But one is sad to see how he has used this great God-given opportunity for destruction and death. Only a revival of real Christianity can bring him back to his senses. Let us pray and work for it.

Observe that the family was established as the center of man's life on earth, as God gave him a "help meet unto him." Woman was taken "not out of man's head that she should rule over him; nor out of his feet to be trampled upon; but out of his side to be equal with him, under his arm to be protected by him, and near his heart to be loved by him" (Matthew Henry).

The decay of family life and the modern substitution of social and civic units as the basis of life have led to disastrous results, one of which is juvenile delinquency. Not only do we need a revival of religion, we also need a revival of the home life of the nation.

III. God Made All Things Well (v. 31).

When men do recognize the hand of God in creation, they often seem to feel that what He made was rather limited and defective. It would almost seem that God should be clever about perfecting His work, developing it and making it useful.

As a matter of fact, God, who had all knowledge and whose standards are higher than man's standards could possibly be, looked over His creation and "behold, it was very good" (v. 31). It was a "finished" job (2:1).

Man has destroyed much of creation's beauty. Sin came in and marred it. What man's inventive cleverness has developed of the possibilities of this world is only a minute fraction of what is yet available. Instead of boasting, man might well be distressed at the pathetic slowness with which he has "thought God's thoughts after Him."

Instead of fighting and destroying, he ought to give his energies to building, developing, and above all, to loving God with all his heart and his neighbor as himself (Matt. 22:37-40).

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

Commander Joseph W. Golinkin, well-known artist of sporting prints and now commodore of a section of the Pacific fleet, writes that he had cleared through censorship a piece he had written for a New York newspaper on naval operations there. He says that he was amazed at the few changes made in his copy, but one floored him. The censor changed the word "debutante" to "society girl."

The Press Box: Cynics pointed to the Syria to illustrate their sordid opinions that an international organization is useless. On the contrary, that squabble proves the necessity of it. So that such differences can be solved by men sitting around a table instead of soldiers in foxholes. . . . A Boston gazette quips: "Jap leaders are sighing for a leader like Josef Stalin—and if they make any false moves in his direction, they're likely to have one."

Quotation Marksmanship: W. E. Barrett: Nobody ever sees a city go to sleep; it shuts itself up and drops off to slumber an inch at a time. . . . I. Panin: Pessimists are people who, having the choice between two evils, will choose both. . . . Mag Dige: Money will buy a dog, but it will not buy a wag of its tail. . . . Damon Runyon: Nobody on Broadway gives a darn about a million dollars. They merely want to live like millionaires. . . . I. Prima's suggestion for Hitler's headstone: A corporal in the last war—a corpse in this one. . . . Anon: Europe: A collection of countries with chips on their shoulders and none on the table. . . . Sign at Paul's in the Adirondacks: Honeymooners treated with studied neglect. . . . H. L. Mencken: The final test of fame is to have a crazy person imagine he is you!

Attention Mr. and Mrs. United States:

Washington: At the very same time Congress is considering raising its own salary, a Congressional committee has recommended that salaries be reduced for other public servants. . . . If it becomes law, the following loyal Americans will get a cut in pay: The undersecretaries of State and Treasury; Mr. Noonan (Commissioner of Internal Revenue); the Director of the Budget, Mr. Bell (of all people), who handles the money; and one of the most popular of public servants—J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the F.B.I. In effecting laws for their own degrading raise in pay—our Congress should set an example—for other underpaid public servants.

Salzburg, Germany: Emil Jannings (former Hollywood German movie actor) is now beating his breast protesting that he never was a Nazi. Although Emil Jannings took part in Goebbels' propaganda. Jannings (over the radio this week) brazenly sent his greetings to movie director Ernst Lubitsch. He described Lubitsch as his friend. This is to offer the United States Immigration Department a witness against Emil Jannings—if he tries re-entering our country. . . . The witness (Ernst Lubitsch) will testify that Emil Jannings is a liar and a Nazi—if you will pardon the redundancy.

Los Angeles: Generals Patton and Doolittle were received by their fellow Californians with open arms. . . . Typically, these great American generals gave all the credit to their men. . . . It resulted (also in typical American reaction) in even greater public admiration and affection for themselves. . . . Hundreds of thousands of soldiers have given Generals Patton and Doolittle the regulation Army salute from the shoulder. . . . Millions of American civilians today are giving Patton and Doolittle a salute from the heart.

Washington Ticker: Adolph Berle, Jr., our Ambassador to Brazil, has flown back to Washington to report in person to the President. That's how serious matters are in Brazil because of our peculiar romance with Argentina. . . . Ed Pauley is slated to be U. S. Reparations Commissioner for Japan after F-J Day. . . . The Japs will pay for Pearl Harbor—from the pocket—as well as through the nose. . . . Bob Hannegan plans to muster the full strength of the next presidential campaign in the 1946 Congressional fight. . . . LaGuardia is still a dark-horse candidate to repeat himself as Mayor of N. Y.

Former drama critic and naval officer John Mason Brown will inherit the late Ernie Pyle's spot on Ernie's syndicate. . . . This reporter has sent an entire col'm of "information" (on the Langford murder case) to Dist. Atty Hogan of N. Y. . . . O.W.I.'s psychological warfare section—which prepared the leaflets dropped by B-29s to Japs—has been cut to shreds by Congress. It may mean that one too many American soldiers will die fighting Japs who might otherwise have surrendered by believing the O.W.I.

Served Country 64 Years

Few Americans have served their country as long as Edward A. Savoy, who was the messenger of 21 different United States secretaries of state between 1869 and 1893, says Collier's.

During these 64 years, this Negro performed many delicate tasks, which included the handing of their credentials to two foreign diplomats who were asked to leave this country—the Spanish minister in 1898 and the Austro-Hungarian ambassador in 1915.

After the meeting Oracle Margaret Miller gave a party, bunco was played and coffee and doughnuts served. There was a large attendance Mrs. Doris Andres was the lucky one to win the mystery package.

GARDEN CLUB NOTES
The June meeting of the Tinley Park Garden club was held at the home of Mrs. R. J. Hug, 8921 Racine Ave. Chicago. The meeting was opened by the president Mrs. John E. Swisher, who read a beautiful and impressive poem.

The business of the afternoon was taken care of promptly. Our program chairman, Mrs. R. J. Hug then presented Mr. Nelson, Orthodontologist who gave a very interesting and education al lecture on bird life. Mr. Nelson used colored slides and brought the beauty of the out of doors right into the living room.

Marked enthusiasm was shown as he told short human interest stories in connection with many of the beautiful pictures he had to show.

At the conclusion of the meeting the hostess served delicious refreshments. Guests of the afternoon were Mrs. Nick Barzen, who is Mrs. Hug's aunt and Mrs. Korton.

We are almost ready to purchase our second war bond. The July meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Bert Fulton. If you can not attend kindly notify her.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mager spent the weekend in St. Louis, Mo. with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mager and Lt. and Mrs. Howard Mager. A family reunion was held over the weekend.

Arthur Mancke, Cox, in the Navy arrived home Sunday on a 30 day leave. He has been overseas 21 months and has been awarded two combat stars. He now lives in Harvey and was formerly of Tinley.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 24, was:

"IS THE UNIVERSE, INCLUDING MAN, EVOLVED BY ATOMIC FORCE?"

The Golden Text was:

"The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein" (Ps. 24: 1).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord, or being his counsellor hath taught him? . . . To whom then will ye liken me, or shall I be equal? saith the Holy One. Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number: he calleth them all by names by the greatness of his might, for that he is strong in power; not one faileth" (Isa. 40: 13,25,26).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"God creates and governs the universe, including man. The universe is filled with spiritual ideas, which He evolves, and they are obedient to the Mind that makes them . . . Infinite Mind creates and governs all, from the mental molecule to infinity. This divine Principle of all expresses Science and art throughout His creation, and the immortality of man and the universe. Creation is ever appearing and must ever continue to appear from the nature of its inexhaustible source" (pp. 295, 567).

Orange Roll Offers Refreshing New Dessert

The family will enjoy this orange-flavored treat.

FEATHER-LIGHT Orange Roll is a happy ending for any meal. Marjorie Griffin, rural home editor of Capper's Farmer, advises homemakers faced with the daily task of providing zesty desserts.

"Dinner guests will think you're super smart to prepare it," she writes in the magazine read by 1,250,000 farm families. "Surround it with thinnest of orange slices and green leaves on a handsome platter."

The recipe she provides will make 10 slices, or enough for some "seconds" in the average family.

Orange Roll

3 eggs 1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
1 c. sugar 1/4 tsp. salt
6 tbsp. orange juice Confectioners' sugar
1 c. cake flour

Beat eggs until lemon colored; add sugar, beating until mixture is thick.

Add orange juice. Sift together flour; baking powder and salt; add to first mixture, mixing only to blend. Line a shallow pan, 10 by 15 inches, with waxed paper. Pour in batter; bake at 375° F. for 20 minutes. Sift confectioners' sugar on piece of paper. Turn cake out on this and remove waxed paper. Spread with Orange Filling; roll up like jelly roll.

Orange Filling

1 c. orange juice 3 tbsp. cornstarch
1 egg yolk 2 tbsp. butter
1/2 c. corn syrup salt

Add 1/4 c. orange juice to beaten egg yolk, add syrup and cornstarch and mix thoroughly. Heat remaining orange juice in top of double boiler; add to egg mixture and return to double boiler. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened; cover and cook 5 minutes longer. Remove from heat, add butter and salt; cool.

IT'S TIME FOR YOUR PRESSURE COOKER TO HAVE A

"Coming Out" Party...

CLEAN IT UP NOW...

AND BE READY FOR C-DAY
(Canning Day)

HERE'S WHAT TO DO: 1 Be sure your pressure gauge is accurate. Have it tested. Some manufacturers and colleges will check gauges if you send them in.

2 To eliminate any storage or cooking odors or taste, put water in pressure cooker to 1-inch level. Toss in a big handful of potato peelings. Heat for 15 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Cool. Wash kettle, pans, and racks in hot, soapy water. Rinse and dry.

3 If your canner is aluminum, avoid using strong soaps or harsh scouring powders. Remove stains from aluminum canners with a paste of whiting and vinegar. If you have a porcelain enameled steel canner, use water instead of vinegar.

4 Wash kettle in hot, soapy water but don't immerse cover in water—the pressure gauge won't like it. Just wipe cover with a soapy cloth and then a clean, damp one. Dry thoroughly. If necessary, clean edges of cover and kettle with whiting and vinegar. Dried food or scale formed by hard water on either edge may prevent a tight seal—allow steam to leak out.

5 Clean pet cock openings and safety valve frequently by drawing a string or narrow strip of cloth through them. Keep opening of the steam gauge clean with a toothpick.

Remember, your pressure cooker is a weapon of war. Care for it—share it!

Open Letter
To The Press

Dear Mr. Editor:

Because of state wide interest in the matter, may I point out that Mrs. Vashti McCollum was not a member of the University of Illinois faculty at the time she filed her suit to prohibit the Champaign public schools from offering religious instruction.

She was added to the staff last fall when we had the largest enrollment of women students in the history of the institution and emergency assistance was needed not only in physical education but in many other areas. Another reason why her appointment was on a temporary basis is that her husband is a member of the College of Agriculture faculty and the University has a definite policy against the employment of relatives.

The official Appointment Mrs. McCollum had to teach one-third time in physical education was made for the first semester only and expired in February. However, at the end of the first semester only and expired in February. However, at the end of the first semester enrollment remained at such a high level that it was necessary to keep her services, but instead of renewing her appointment she was employed from month to month on an hourly wage basis until May 23. At the time her employment

Freed: Buys Bonds

U. S. Signal Corps Photo

PHILIPPINE SCOUT—When Capt. John B. Smith, Philippine scout, received his back pay and allowances after three years' internment in a Japanese prison camp, he bought War Bonds. The captain was wounded on Bataan and lost 55 pounds in weight during his imprisonment. At the present time he is making a War Bond tour, and buys War Bonds at each meeting. "The civilian," he declared, "is taking a poke at Hirohito each time he buys a War Bond." Smith hails from Houston, Texas.

Has Hitler Lost?

By Dr. Alfred P. Haake

They tell us Hitler is dead. The Nazi leaders are being rounded up for trial as criminals responsible for the horrors of Hitler, and Germany has ceased to exist as a military power. Italy has gone down and Japan will follow.

But Hitlerism goes on, Fascism still struts, and worship of the state instead of God is still with us. The menace of all three is rooted in the same phenomenon that marks the trend of developments right here in the United States, namely, increasing government control over individual life.

The "instruments of power" that are built first to exploit some parts of the population for the benefit of other parts, to use federal or national resources to benefit states, municipalities and individuals, later become the instruments through which the central government becomes all-powerful and the individual citizen its slave. Out of the egg of socialism hatches the horror of tyranny and dictatorship.

In Germany the central government built roads and made public improvements, provided recreation, managed the schools and churches—and controlled business, to the end of full employment and social security. It was Hitler who first promised freedom from want and freedom from fear, and who came closest to providing both, for a while. His program was popular with the very masses who later became his slaves in consequence of that program.

In Italy the development followed the same general pattern, going from socialism to fascism. In Russia it began with revolution and communism and is now going strongly as state socialism under dictatorship. In each case there was glorification of government, over all planning and "social control."

Right here at home, for example, there is seriously proposed federal aid for schools, for which many educators themselves are actually lobbying at the present time, and which carries the virus of fascism in its insidious beneficence. To provide medical benefits for the poor there is proposed in Washington a program that will prostitute our medical profession to political control.

Under the guise of furnishing 60 million jobs for less than 55 million workers, certain groups in Washington are working actively for over all planning and regimentation of industry. What they think of as something new is actually about as old as government itself. It is a form of cartel that must lead ultimately to monopoly and industrial slavery.

Even some ministers of the Church blinded by the glamor of socialistic altruism, and themselves losing faith in God and their own power to lead men to righteous individual living, are clamoring for the bureaucratic social controls that can end only in one form or another of the very fascism they denounce.

No matter what lovely names and high sounding phrases we use, if we content ourselves with merely destroying Germany and even hanging her Nazi leaders, while we permit government control in the United States to follow the trend already under way, we will have defeated Hitler in Europe only to surrender to Hitlerism at home.

Various games, races and contests, for young and old, were enjoyed and prizes awarded. Lunch was served in the school house basement. Mrs. Lester Sayers and Mrs. Helen Stewart were in charge. All had a wonderful time.

FRANKFORT

The Rev. E. L. Winters officiated at a wedding ceremony read in the parsonage of the Frankfort Methodist church Thursday afternoon, June 21 for Miss Jean Pepka of Blue Island and Harold A. Lemmon of Chicago Heights. Mr. Lavender of Chicago Heights and Mrs. Winters witnessed the ceremony. Mr. Lemmon is the son of Mrs. Lee Lemmon who recently lived in Frankfort and is now of Joliet.

Announcement has been made of the approaching marriage of Miss Lorraine Bettenhausen daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bettenhausen, and Glenn Deschel of Midlothian, Saturday, June 30 at 7:00 pm. The vows will be read at the Frankfort Methodist church with the pastor the Rev. E. L. Winters officiating.

Miss Evelyn Bormet daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bormet was 49 years old June 19. To celebrate the occasion more than 70 guests were entertained at the Bormet home that evening. Pinocle was played with awards for scores going to Mrs. Alfred Bethel, Mrs. John Bettenhausen Norman Bettenhausen and Earl Bettenhausen. A luncheon was served at midnight followed by dancing with music furnished by an orchestra composed of Mrs. Earl Ullrich, Herman Bormet, Vernon and Edwin Bormet.

The Wednesday afternoon pinocle club met at the home of Mrs. Raymond Bettenhausen last week. Honors for scores went to Miss Esther Bettenhausen, Mrs. Earl Ullrich and Mrs. Ruben Schmidt. A two course luncheon was served. July 18 Miss Esther Bettenhausen will entertain the women and their families at a picnic at the Bettenhausen home.

The third meeting of the ENO 4H club was held June 20 at school district 152 with all members and a guest Mrs. Otto Wischover, present. The meeting was opened by Betty Wischover president with the secretary and treasurer's reports following. Roll call was answered with What Rood I learned to Eat. Larry Sievert presented the following program: Green Vegetables by Elvenda Wischover; Flower Arrangements by Shirley Schult; Building Blocks for Food, Roger Wischover; Make It Do Till Victory, Betty Wischover and War Time Ideas, James De Vries. Harold Sievert reported on the 4H camp. The group enjoyed a few songs and games for recreation. Lunch was served by Roger, Betty and Roberta Wischover. The next meeting will be at school district 152 on July 11.

The Happy Hustlers 4H club will meet July 3 at the Schiffer home. Faye June Oetter entertained the Victory club at her home Friday. Games were played and refreshments were served.

On account of bad weather, the Frankfort Woman's Club did not hold an outdoor meeting Thursday as was previously planned. The women met at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Wassner with Mrs. Arthur Lambrecht as co-hostess. A potluck luncheon was served at 12:30 pm. Mrs. LaMar Weatherbee presided and led the pledge to the flag which followed the Woman's Club Collect. The secretary and treasurer gave their reports. A committee composed of Mrs. Weatherbee, Miss Viola Lankenau, and Mrs. Lawrence Woodman and Mrs. O. Maples was appointed to purchase school desks with the sanction of the school board. Various opinions were expressed at an open discussion on future projects. In the past the clubs projects were confined mostly to school equipment, having purchased shower curtains for the girls gym, radios for each school room, helped in the purchase of stage curtains and school playground equipment.

Two officers were elected: Mrs. Wasner is the new vice pres., succeeding Mrs. Walter Pfaff; Mrs. Lawrence Woodman is the new secretary succeeding Mrs. Fred Heisner. Mrs. Weatherbee, pres., and Mrs. Maples treasurer, hold their offices another year.

Mrs. Robt. Stephen and Miss Anna Eizer were guests. The Sept. meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Chas. Pfaff with Mrs. Maples as co-hostess.

"How I Got My Name" will be used for the roll call when the Snip and Snack 4H club meets at the Green Garden Methodist church Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Lois Weitendorf entertained the Happy Hustlers 4H club at her home Tuesday evening. Mrs. Duranda Crall home adviser, spoke on the Achievement Slow and Judging. The following program was presented: Ina Ruth Shifler, Getting the Most out of Your Sewing Machine, Phyllis Koenig gave a talk on Designs, Slen-dezizing and Widening, a clothing talk on cotton fabrics was given by Jean Keuch; Phyllis Koenig presented a health lesson, Betty Lou Oetter's topic was How to Keep Cool and Shirley Weichbrodt spoke on the care of the hair. Betty Lou Oetter was in charge of recreation, Carla Haugh gave a monologue and Faye June Oetter, accompanied by Wilma Mark sang The Lord's Prayer. Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held July 3 at the Shifler home east of Frankfort.

Rev. and Mrs. G. S. Gerhold and daughters Esther and Hilda of Champaign visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Krusemark Sr. and Mrs. Paul Gerhold, Saturday and Sunday. They also visited at the Clarence Gerhold home in Riverdale.

Willa Schroeder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Schroeder celebrated her fifth birthday at a dinner at her home Thursday at which grandparents and sponsors were guests. They were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Mueller, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Mueller and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ebert.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dorband of Blue Island, frequent visitors in Frankfort will observe their silver wedding anniversary Sunday, June 30 at their home in Blue Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Scheer celebrated their 42nd wedding anniversary Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Schellhase will be hosts to members of their card club tomorrow evening at their home.

Servicemen visiting at Frankfort last week were Clarence Klepper and Raymond Bettenhausen. The latter is a patient at Hines hospital. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bettenhausen. Mrs. Bettenhausen has been confined to Silver Cross hospital since early this year. Lt. Klepper is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Klepper.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Vollrath received word from their son Lambert, a Marine that he is recovering from an injured foot. Details of the accident were lacking.

Mrs. Robt. Frey is visiting her husband who is a patient at a Michigan hospital for servicemen.

Miss Alice Kochel returned home from Silver Cross hospital Wednesday where she underwent an appendectomy.

Mrs. Walter Pfaff returned from a visit with her daughter June and son in law Pfc. Ralph Neiland at Piote, Tex.

Mrs. W. V. Hedges and sons Roger and Alan left last Tuesday for Lake Kegonsa, Wis. where they will be joined later by Dr. Hedges at their summer home. Accompanying them were Miss Charlene Folkers and Dick Lambrecht.

"Butch" Koerner underwent a ton-silectomy at Silver Cross hospital Monday.

Guests at the Baumann home Monday were Mr. and Mrs. Leo Whitcomb and family of Marion, Ind. Mrs. Sheldon Whitcomb and daughter, and Mrs. Otis Whitcomb of Mat-teson.

MOKENA

When Augie Link and Walt Olson called on Morry Larson the other day they were surprised that he was having a swell time—yes you guessed it he HAS THE MUMPS!

Says Augie: "Well this goes to show how quick you can get paid back. What do I mean? Oh this is a sort of payoff for the trick Morry pulled pulled on Chuck Hurley when he transformed his prize package of chicken he was going to give his boss into a pair of old shoes."

Recently in mentioning the special award made to Mokena students it was stated that the American Legion had made the award, but this was in error. It should have read "The VFW."

Mr. VanLee Shaw is building a new brick house on his property south of St. John's cemetery on Wolf Rd. The building as planned will be 75 feet in width. Mr. Shaw has recently purchased the 40 acres adjoining his property and owned by Mr. Greenman of Chicago.

Albert Braun is remodeling the kitchen in the apartment recently vacated by the Ralph Knachmuhls family.

Mrs. Carrie Mattes who received serious injury recently, when she fell carrying a glass fruit jar, is still a patient in Silver Cross hospital. The veins, nerves and bone in her arm were severed and required stitches and the setting of the bone. Her arm is in a cast.

Hello Mr. and Mrs. Semmler:

Just a line for now to thank you for sending me the News Bulletin. It sure is swell to read all the news from Mokena when I am down here in this hot state of La. I do mean hot too. Sat, we went on a march and had about five fellows pass out from the heat. The infantry is really rough.

I am feeling fine and get plenty to eat, which counts a lot. The old term, an army moves on its stomach is really a true statement. If you have an empty stomach you don't go very far. I have gained six pounds already. Also am getting a good sun tan which sure is not very hard to get down here.

Thanks again for the paper and keep sending them.

Yours truly,

Pvt. Bob Homering

Dear Friends:

Will drop a line or two to let you know I am still existing. Received your box of stationary a few days ago, certainly can use it. Thanks a million.

The Times have been coming thru very well lately, some a bit old but enjoyable.

Here's hoping the boys will all be home soon including myself. Every one of the G. I's over here are anxiously waiting to board the boat that will take them back to the good old USA and of course yours truly is hoping against hope that he will be next.

I'm still in the business Motor Supply. At present I am waiting promotion to Staff Sergeant which will mean a raise in pay and more money for the future.

Have to close now, hoping to see everyone of you soon. I remain your Good Friend,

Dear Friends:

Thank you for the Easter card and stationary. I am indeed sorry for not writing you sooner, today is the first opportunity I have had for sometime.

A few days ago I just returned from the hospital. I was sick with Malaria. At the present time I am OK. We boys are looking forward to coming home. I have enough points and battle decorations to grant me a discharge however there is still a war going on in the East. Our supply lines are getting longer, but I guess if they need you, points don't mean a thing. I do imagine I will get a furlough anyhow, just how soon we will be on our way is beyond my knowledge.

How are all the folks around Tinley Park? Austria is a nice country, we are in a valley and there is snow on the mountains.

This is about all I know for now, am thanking you again and a big hello to you all.

Cordially yours,

Hello Folks:

Just a few lines to thank you for your lovely Easter package. I was very happy to receive it. Well things look pretty good right now and this thing should be over in a few days, which makes me and a lot more very happy. I am sorry that I did not write more often but as you know I am not much of a hand at writing letters as my wife sure can vouch for, God Bless her, she has written a lot and me very few. But I will make it up when I get back. Of course we are still censored and can't write very much of what is going on.

I am sorry to say that I have not met any of the boys from home but a lot of us have been very near to each other at times. Am OK and feeling fine and the weather is not too bad any more and I have hopes of being home soon as I am beginning to be an Old Joe. I will say goodbye for now, thanks again for your gift.

I remain,

Dear Friends:

Just a line or two to let you know I received the very nice Easter present that you sent me, thanks a lot cause it sure will come in handy.

I would like to tell you about some of the things we have done but we are not allowed to so I am sending you a little sheet that was put out by the Division.

It tells in a few words about some of the things that happened here.

This letter leaves me about the same as ever which isn't saying very much.

So I'll close for now thanking all you people back there for what you are doing for us in the Service. So long and God Bless you all.

Sincerely,
Your Friend,

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3
by 2nd Lt. Erylne Conel

Squadron News—Squadron 613-3 has received a Commendation from Group 613, Commander E. L. Masterton, for "the very fine turn out and showing which was made by your Unit at the Chicago Memorial Day Parade."

W-O Floyd Orrington made a parachute jump at Pal-Waukee Airport on June 13th. Congratulations on your second "step out into the blue", Warrant Officer Floyd!

The Squadron is busy organizing a Hanger Dance and Air Show, which will include a thrilling Night Jump by famed Mike Burson. Now scheduled for the month of July, the date and program will be announced as soon as plans are completed.

Operations Officer Lt. Ted Farrington leaves June 22 for Owakone Ont. Canada where he will spend the next two months. For the past 17 summers Lt. Farrington has been an engineer at this camp, which is located 200 miles North of Duluth and 100 miles from the nearest town. He plans to get in some flying time in Canadian planes, English Moths, equipped with floats, also Fleets and Aeronaes.

WAC Pvt. Jean Essary was visiting with old friends at the airport Sunday. She is enjoying a two weeks furlough from Daw Field, Bangor, Maine where she is stationed as a Link Trainer instructor.

Congratulations go to 3 new Eagles Herbert Peterson, R. J. Clifford and Lester Gard all won private licenses June 14.

That's all for now.

Will Co., Farmers Set Production Record

Will County farmers were paid $22,945.51 for milk delivered to the Bowman Dairy receiving plants during the month of May.

These figures are released each month just as soon as they are compiled at the company executive offices. Mr. D. Cameron Peck, Bowman Vice-President, when releasing these figures said, "The production of milk has greatly increased in this area during the last month. We know that at this time of the year there is a natural increase, but Bowman farmers must be given great credit for doing their part in producing milk. Weather and manpower problems have been extremely acute—but these loyal Americans have worked harder and harder to provide milk and dairy products for our armed forces and for our civilian population."

Mr. Peck concluded by saying, "Bowman farmers may well be proud of their milk production records. We are grateful for their splendid cooperation."

Lt. Robert Funk Prisoner of Nazis Eight Months Returns Home

The rumble of the Russian cannons could be heard as the battle of Berlin was on. One night an RAF force of bombers staged a raid on a strategic island about 30 miles from Barth. Lt. Funk said this raid provided one of the most thrilling fire fights, "as the enemy's exploding bombs, bullets, bursting bombs, etc., lighted the sky for miles."

One day a swarm of Nazi planes landed near the camp and word soon reached the camp that the notorious Heinrich Himmler had arrived and was trying to negotiate a peace offer with the American and British forces, but had left Russia out. His terms of course were rejected. Then one day liaison officers of the Russian army arrived at the camp and the next day the Russian army moved in and liberated the prisoners of war. The wire fences and sentry towers surrounding the camp were immediately torn down. The Nazis had pulled out the night before and had thus eluded the Russians. Old men of 60 to 70 years and wounded soldiers of the Nazis had been left as guards. The so-called "Volksturm" recruited from the civilian population as a sort of last ditch measure, was ineffective.

When the Russian forces moved in they had American made jeeps, trucks, tanks etc., in their mechanized units. The Russians were very friendly to the allied prisoners of war. Some of the officers spoke English. The liberation of the camp took place May 1st. A short time later, Lt. Funk and the rest of the liberated men were flown by RAF planes to France. They spent two days in Reims and then went to LaHarve, France where they remained until June 13 when 6,000 American Service men sailed for the good old U. S. A. They landed in Boston and were given a most tumultuous ovation. From there Lt. Funk went to Fort Sheridan and arrived in good old Tinley Park Sunday evening.

In describing conditions in Europe, Lt. Funk declared that the German civilians on the whole were more bitter against the Americans than the Nazis themselves. He related one incident that while the allied prisoners were being taken thru a town an old German man attempted to strike him with a cane. He cursed the Americans and spit at them.

Lt. Funk's operations had been in the Saar valley and he declares the destruction of the cities, railroads, factories, etc., were undecipherable. Germany once had a fine railroad system, but now hundreds of locomotives and cars are piled up either shot full of holes or burned out. The smaller villages and farms appeared to have escaped the terrible destruction wrought on other portions of the country. Many signs were still visible along highways advertising well known American products, as Ford cars, Standard Oil, etc.

Lt. Funk saw the wreckage in London caused by Nazi bombing and buzz bombs, mostly of the destruction being in residential section.

Whole blocks of apartment houses and dwellings were destroyed. In the heart of London the damage was not near as great as in the outskirts.

Among the souvenirs, Lt. Funk brought back a copy of a Berlin tabloid newspaper, known as the "Berliner Illustrierte Zeitung" issued in January of this year. This tabloid, printed on a good grade of book paper is profusely illustrated with pictures of war scenes and also contains many interesting articles and stories. Another souvenir, is a German made revolver along the famed Luger model of World War one. The new weapon has a magazine for nine bullets and is of a quick firing type. A map of Germany, printed in colors and advertising Standard Oil products, was also in the collection. This map shows the location of Barth where this German prison camp was located. Another interesting relic is an insignia in the shape of an eagle with the Nazi swastika emblem in its beak taken from a German uniform.

Lt. Funk did receive a Christmas package and Christmas card from his folks, but this was the only mail that came thru.

Lt. Funk has the Air medal and Oak Leaf clusters. He is home on a 60-day furlough following which he will report at Miami, Florida.

WHAT two men would you say played the most prominent roles in making Gene Tunney the undefeated heavyweight champion of the world?

It must be admitted at the start that Tunney did a fair job on his own. He was still the vital factor. He did most of the work, and most of the thinking. But he still needed some outside help, for Gene was a raw product on the way up. In his first match against Harry Greb, Tunney took the worst beating of his career. But from that fight on Commander Tunney kept moving up.

"The two men who helped me most," Tunney told me a few weeks ago, "were Jim Corbett and William Muldoon. It was Mr. Muldoon who gave me early encouragement when I needed it badly. He was also the one who gave me sound advice on physical conditioning and training."

Master Boxer

"What boxers need today," Tunney said, "is variety of attack. Jack Dempsey didn't need this so much with his devastating left hook. He could knock your head off with this one punch. And don't forget that Jack was extremely fast. I had no such punch. So I needed variety, which Corbett gave me. At least Jim gave me the general idea. For Corbett had more variety than anyone I've ever known."

"After talking and working with Corbett I went to work on several types of punches. I mean by that the body uppercut, which few boxers had ever used. Most uppercuts are headed for the chin. There were several other punches I worked on, day after day. I might even say — year after year. I made a close study of the human body to find the most vulnerable parts. Especially the nerve centers. I had discovered that a punch delivered to some spots would have no effect—where the same blow a few inches away could cause trouble. Fitzsimmons applied this knowledge in his famous solar-plexus punch that left Corbett paralyzed for a minute or more. Six inches to the right or left, this punch would have had no such effect."

"It was Jim Corbett to whom I went for ring advice. In my opinion there has only been one Corbett when it comes to the science of boxing. I boxed with Corbett when he was past 60. He would feint with his left hand—and then hit you with the left. Or he would feint with the left—and nail you with a right. There was no way to tell just what he was going to do. He could mix up more punches than any one I ever saw. Corbett not only had amazing hand and foot speed, but even more important he had a smart brain. Even at that age, Jim could really dazzle you. He could still keep you bewildered. So I can imagine what he must have been when he was 25 or 30 years younger. I can only say that Jim was always kind to me, always interested in helping."

Few Vulnerable Spots

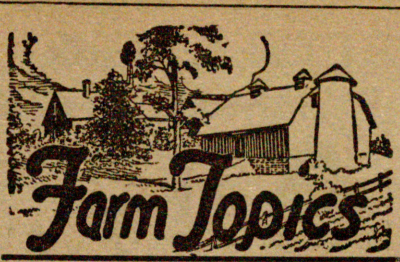

"Judging a fight from the viewpoint of blows that hit certain parts of the anatomy is something more than you can ask a referee or any judge to consider. And yet it is a vital factor. I've heard fight crowds cheer loudly at some solid thump on an opponent's shoulder. This means nothing at all. It is just wasted effort, no matter how effective it may look to the crowd."

"There are only certain parts of the human body that give way to punishment. These are parts that few boxers today even know about. It was Corbett's advice that led me to study these vulnerable spots. At least Jim proved to me beyond any doubt that boxing was more of a science than mere brute strength. A scientific boxer can make a crude fighter look awkward although the latter might be twice as strong."

"I've found that few of these terrific punches can hit a moving target who knows how to keep out of the way. You may recall how many punches Max Baer landed on Jim Braddock, who was no section of lightning. I don't believe Max landed even one solid blow in 15 rounds. But Max couldn't miss big Carnera. Boxing is one of the finest and one of the most scientific sports in the world. It would be a great help to the game if a few of the modern generation coming along were only willing to work along these lines. Which so few of them are."

Return of Lombardi

When Ernest Natali Lombardi lay stricken in the dust of Cincinnati's home plate in the final world series game of 1939, the big fellow's career seemed to be closing out. But it is all different now. The big Giant catcher has again become one of the most valuable adjuncts to his squad, one of the strong men from either league. Lombardi, normally a .300 hitter, dropped down to a .255 average last season. But now, in his 37th year, he has again been thumping the ball lustily.

Need for Legume and Grass Seed Increases

Good Profit Seen For Seed Growers

Harvesting legume and grass seed will bring a three-fold return to farmers: additional income, assurance of feed for livestock and protection for their soil, says the U.S.D.A.

An increase of 67 per cent over last year's harvested acreage of alfalfa seed is sought in 1945, a total of 179,000 acres. One reason for the larger acreage is the urgent call for this seed from liberated areas of Europe, in addition to increasing home requirements for hay and soil protection.

Half again as much alfalfa seed is needed as was harvested in 1944, about 100,000,000 pounds.

About 120,000,000 pounds of red clover seed are needed, some 15 per cent more than was produced last year.

Hay and pasture account for more than three-quarters of the feed consumed by dairy cows and furnish a major share of the feed for other livestock.

In addition, farmers depend on legumes and grasses to check soil erosion and maintain fertility. For example, legumes used as green manure add nitrogen to the soil and when grown in mixtures, they furnish this essential element to the grasses in the mixture. When used in crop rotations, legumes maintain and increase the acre yield of other crops. Both grasses and legumes are valuable as permanent cover for the land, holding the soil against erosion by wind and water.

Good prices and a ready market are indicated for legume and grass seed in 1945-46, pointing to additional income for farmers from properly managed fields. The first crop of many of these plants may be cut for hay or used as pasture, and the second harvested for seed.

Killing Bean Beetles

Mexican bean beetle, left, and bean leaf beetle, right, can be gotten rid of by spray or dust with cryolite every 10 days until pods begin to form, then using rotenone.

For cryolite spray use 1 ounce to 1 gallon of water. For dust, 2 pounds to 1 pound of talc. For rotenone spray, use Derris or cube root powder, 5 per cent rotenone content, 1/2 ounce to 1 gallon water. For dust, use ready prepared dust mixture containing at least 1 per cent of rotenone.

Save the Tractor and Conserve Time and Life

Time, money, injuries and deaths resulting from tractor accidents may be largely prevented by proper operation. Avoid holes or ditches that may cause tractors to overturn. Drive slowly, reduce speed on turn or when applying brakes. Never ride on draw bar. Don't permit riders. Make all adjustments while tractor is idle. Stop power take-off before dismounting. Be sure that all power line shielding is in place.

Do not operate tractor in a closed building. Refuel only when motor is cool and dead. Be sure the gear shift lever is in neutral before cranking the engine.

Effect of Pregnancy

The severe price discriminations practiced by market buyers against pregnant yearling heifers are not justified when such heifers are marketed by the end of the fifth month of gestation, according to the Illinois agricultural experiment station.

Slaughtered tests and carcass show that pregnant heifers take on a higher degree of finish and that at this stage of pregnancy neither the dressing percentage nor the market grade is lowered.

Washington, D. C.

POULTRY BLACK MARKET.

WASHINGTON. — The black market in eggs and poultry is so bad that the War Food administration is seriously considering the freezing of all eggs in storage. Meanwhile J. Edgar Hoover's G-men have been quietly probing the poultry black market in the Delaware-Maryland area with startling results. Their findings will reach high into Delaware state politics and perhaps into the Washington headquarters of the War Food administration and OPA.

Already Clifford Shedd, Delaware WFA official, has lost the authority to release poultry for civilian consumption from the army's set-aside, but his chief in Washington, Gordon Sprague, says he is taking full authority for anything that might be found wrong with Shedd's administration. Sprague has taken over direct charge of all poultry releases, but claims that he knows of no irregular action by Shedd.

Meanwhile, black market operations along both the West and the East coast are so serious that legitimate poultry and egg dealers are being forced out of business. The situation in New England, New Jersey and North Carolina is especially bad.

Tim Stitts of the War Food administration told Congressman Anderson's food committee that OPA should suspend all price ceilings on eggs in an effort to channel eggs back into the legitimate market. This immediately caused dealers to hold onto their eggs for a price rise.

But what they did not know is that Stitts has not requested OPA to suspend or even raise the price ceiling on eggs. OPA, under the price control act, cannot raise these ceilings without formal request from the War Food administration, and this request has never been made.

Finally, the WFA may be forced to freeze all eggs in storage, permitting the army to take what it wants of them and release the rest for civilian market. Hundreds of thousands of cases of eggs are in private storage this year while their owners play for an eventual price rise. The black market on those eggs which do not go into storage is so bad that while creameries in Minnesota cannot get eggs, eggs from Minnesota farms are going via illegal channels as far as New York City.

U. S. PRESTIGE ABROAD

Hardboiled Republican Congressman Everett Dirksen of Illinois had a secret meeting with his GOP colleagues in a house lobby the other day following his 30,000-mile trip around the world. He gave them plenty of food for thought. Among other things, Dirksen said:

"Here's something you fellows may not agree with, but I want to tell you that the OWI (Office of War Information) is doing a great job for us abroad."

"I went into Turkey where 83 per cent of the pictures in the Turkish newspapers and 40 per cent of the lineages is supplied them by the OWI. In other words, they are telling the Turks what this country is like—selling the United States to Turkey."

"They're doing a great job and if it wasn't for OWI, American prestige wouldn't be half as high as it is today."

"In India, for instance, I met with a group of political leaders who began asking me about the Tennessee Valley Authority. I was surprised that they would know anything about it, and asked them how it happened; they replied that they had seen an OWI film showing TVA."

"I came to the conclusion," Dirksen said, "that OWI is something we've got to keep after the war."

RUSSIAN RELATIONSHIPS

Unless something unforeseen happens to upset it, Harry Hopkins has won a resounding victory for improved relations with Russia by ironing out the main points of the Polish dispute.

The agreement, hammered out in several intimate talks between Hopkins and Stalin, provided for an immediate meeting by three groups of Polish leaders in Moscow to set up a new Polish government representing all factions. This will include ex-Premier Mikolajczyk of the London government, who has been kept closely informed of all phases of the Kremlin discussions and has approved them.

CAPITAL TALK

Chicago's Mayor Ed Kelly still runs the most impressive servicemen's center in the world, has taken care of more than 15,000,000 G.I. visitors and served them more than 3,000,000 meals.

The state and interior departments both have their eyes on the Philippines. State's budget carries a salary allowance for a U. S. ambassador to the Philippines. Interior's budget carries a salary for a high commissioner. If there is independence, there will be an ambassador; if not, a commissioner.

Of Such Stuff

By J. WILLARD RIDINGS

NO ONE in Brownton would ever have guessed that Joe Adams would be the town's first war hero. But there it was; Joe had been decorated for bravery in action. Joe, the report said, had risked his life to bring in two injured buddies from the battlefield, and had himself been wounded in doing so.

Brownton mothers insisted that the weather was still too cold, even if Spring was in the air. "Joe, you really shouldn't go," Mrs. Adams admonished.

But the boys were sure that swimming days had returned. "Last one in's a softie!" yelled Zeke Davidson, biggest boy in Joe's grade, as he jumped hilariously into the water of Parson Creek.

Zeke came up, teeth chattering. "It is a little cold," he sputtered.

But splashes came in rapid succession as each boy met the challenge. Finally Joe was left alone on the bank. "Joe's a softie!" came the cry.

Joe could barely swim. But he stepped off the sloping mud bank into the edge of the creek. "Joe's a soft—"

The taunt was lost in a gasp as Zeke doubled up, anguish on his face. "Zeke's got cramps!" the boys yelled excitedly.

Zeke made it to shore in spite of his pains but Joe, attempting to help, fell into the swimming hole, beyond his depth. Two of the boys had to pull him out, shivering with

"Disregarding the cross fire of the enemy's machine guns."

cold and spitting water. "Joe's a softie!"

"Disregarding the cross fire of the enemy's machine guns, Pfc. Joseph W. Adams carried a wounded man one hundred yards to the safety of a shell hole." Brownton read in the official citation as printed in the Messenger.

It was the last half of the ninth inning. Brownton High, one run behind, had men on second and third. Joe was at bat. "Come on, Joe. Give us a bingle!" "A hit means the old ball game!" "Just a little single!"

The pitch looked good and Joe swung hard. "Strike three. You're out!" the umpire pronounced.

Brownton roared groaned. Somebody said it, not loud, but clearly. "Joe's a sissy! What can you expect from a boy who plays the piano?"

Joe hadn't particularly wanted to take piano lessons. But circumstances had combined against him. Mrs. Adams was the mother of six boys. She loved music and had dreamed of a daughter who would sing and play. Each time, after the first boy, she had prayed for a girl. Joe was the youngest—and not a girl. When Joe was ten, his father accepted a piano in payment of an old account. There, then, was the piano in the Adams home. There was Mrs. Adams' longing for a talented child. There was Joe. "Music is ennobling," Mrs. Adams insisted. It was as inevitable as that.

"Pfc. Adams, after silencing two enemy snipers with rifle fire, went out and brought in a second badly injured man, this time sustaining a wound in the leg from a machine gun bullet."

"Boy, is this a day to shoot quail! Come on, Joe, let's go hunting."

Joe wasn't too responsive. But shooting was the one thing he could do as well as the other boys.

"If I had a gun like that one of your dad's, I'd go hunting every day, one argued."

They tried boyish flattery. "You can shoot better'n any of us."

"But I don't much like to kill things," Joe said.

Jeers greeted this statement. "Joe feels sorry for the poor little quail!" "Joe can't stand the sight of blood!" "Joe's a killer!"

Yes, Brownton had a war hero of its very own. He lay on a hospital bed in Italy and smiled up at a nurse. "Now don't get me wrong," he told her. "The medal is swell and I'm proud to get it. But this hero stuff is all the bunk! I'm no hero. You know, the thing I do best is play the piano. Anybody back in my home town will tell you that I'm just a sissy!"

Child's Party Dress

A GAY little party dress for your young daughter of two to six. She'll love the full swinging skirt, brief cap sleeves and simple shoulder closing. It will be the coolest, prettiest summer frock she has. Pattern includes panties to match.

If the contents of a tube of shaving cream or tooth paste have hardened, hold the tube under hot water for a short time. This will soften the paste.

To remove cigarette stains from brass ash trays, rub the trays with a paste of salt and vinegar. Then wash well in hot water and soap suds.

To repair a hole left in the wall by a nail, take equal parts of salt and starch, just enough to make a good patching plaster. Fill the holes and they will be neatly covered.

Hot water is better than cold to soak dried fruit and requires only half the time for soaking.

When you tear the lining of your coat and cannot match it with a patch, turn your coat sleeve inside out and cut a patch from the lining there. Mend original tear with this, the sleeve with any other suitable material.

Stacking cups one on top of the other is not good practice. Prevent breaking handles off by hanging them on hooks in the cupboard.

A little turpentine on a soft cloth will remove all dirt film from and give a gloss to an enameled bedstead.

The roasting pan will not be such a task to wash if it is greased well before the roast is put into it. All the essence of the meat goes into the gravy, then, and not into the pan.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

Synthetic rubber, as used in rubber gloves made by B. F. Goodrich, is superior to natural rubber. The new "service gloves" are impervious to strong soap, oils and cleaning fluids that deteriorate natural rubber.

Two synthetic rubber plants operated by The B. F. Goodrich Company have produced 300,000,000 pounds of synthetic rubber. This is equivalent to the normal yield of 28,000,000 Far Eastern Rubber trees, requiring the services of 79,000 natives for the same period of time the plants have been in operation. The two plants employ about 1,200 men and women.
